

Let's shape the future of Suffolk together

How could public services work better for you?

The national government wants to simplify how Councils work. This means the current County, District, and Borough Councils will be replaced and all services will be run by new "Unitary Councils".

Currently, local government services are delivered in Suffolk like this:

- Suffolk County Council is responsible for delivering services such as special educational needs and disabilities (SEND), roads, public transport, social care, libraries, and recycling centres across the county.
- Five district and borough councils (Babergh, East Suffolk, Ipswich, Mid Suffolk, and West Suffolk), are responsible in their areas for delivering services like bin collections, street cleaning, parking, leisure services, local planning, council housing, and helping homeless people.

A Unitary Council is a single authority which provides ALL these services for a specific area.

Suffolk's Councils are now looking at how to reorganise to better meet the needs of residents, businesses, and communities, as part of the government's Local Government Reorganisation (LGR) initiative.
